Genetic variation in eight Bulgarian tomato varieties and breeding lines (variety Plovdivska karotina, variety IZK Alya, L21 beta, L53 beta, L1140, L1116, L975, L984) differing in their morphological and biochemical composition was assessed using a highly efficient and low-cost fluorescent simple sequence repeat (SSR) genotyping platform.

mutants suggest that genetic variation occurred in all the treatments as compared to control. Primer-wise detail of DNA polymorphism detected is given in Table 1. The results given in the Table indicated that quality and quantity of amplification products were sufficient for detection of genetic distance among the potato variants and mutants.
